

ABSTRACT

5 In a relay device which load balances or provides redundancy, a monitoring portion monitors states of other relay devices belonging to the same group, and a load balancing receiver load balances receiving packets with the other relay devices or provides redundancy based on the states of the other relay devices. Also, whether or not to relay packets is determined based on a group table preset.